

LONG BEACH, April 10.—The tin man in Long Beach must go. Rubbish must be hauled to the dump, weeds removed from vacant lots, trees pruned, and flowers planted. This is the dictum of the Chamber of Commerce, which urges the support of the schools and civic organizations in the attempt to make Long Beach the city beautiful. April 20-26 is designated as clean-up week by the crusaders in the name of municipal beauty.

BUYS CATTLE TO SHIP HERE

Thomas Doyle Sees Soldiers
and Evidences of Fighting
Along Border

Thomas Doyle has just returned from a trip that took him to parts of Arizona, New Mexico and Mexico. He bought 200 head of cattle in Arizona for himself and 160 head near El Paso for Borchard Bros. Doyle's cattle will be shipped here in May to be fattened on the Doyle ranch in the Laguna Hills. Borchard Bros. cattle have been shipped to Madera.

Doyle got about twenty-five miles over the border. He saw no fighting but saw soldiers and lots of evidences of war. He saw the camp of 5000 refugees near El Paso. Wherever he went he found American soldiers closely guarding the border, and it is his opinion that Americans going into Mexican territory along the border will get along all right if they attend strictly to their own business, but if they are looking for trouble they will most certainly get it.

Doyle was accompanied by Joe Serrano, who went with him as interpreter. Practically all of the Mexican cattle that Doyle saw were in poor shape.

MONEY BURIED IN FRUIT JAR DUG UP BY HEIRS

EUREKA, Cal., April 10.—The heirs of the late Berlin Glatt, a pioneer lumberman, have dug up $1200 which he buried in a fruit jar. The widow asserts that he buried $20,000, but despite furious digging the searchers were unable to find more.

The widow says he buried the money four years ago, but that he disinterred it six weeks before his death, counted it and reburied it. Glatt left maps, and at the spots designated on these, the searchers found the jar, and they fear someone may have found the money. Glatt left a $100,000 estate.

FINE PROSPECTS FOR BIG HAY CROP

Reports from various localities are to the effect that the hay crop this season will be an exceptionally good one. Prices are very low, owing to the fact that many ranchers held their crops for high prices and allowed a great many carloads to be shipped in from Arizona, Imperial and other points. The result is that there are large quantities of last year's hay now on the market. Alfalfa is bringing the ranchers $6 per ton, for loose hay. Some are getting $10 for baled alfalfa. Barley hay is selling at from $10 to $13 per ton, the best grades selling at the latter price.

NAUGHTY ST. LOUIS WANTS NUDE STATUES

ST. LOUIS, April 10.—The Mound City is naughty. The Woman's Protective League yesterday said so, and all because a design for a fountain at the Central Public Library includes two nude figures of girls. According to the W. P. L., "children and young people will congregate around the fountain and remarks made in their hearing by men will not be for the best interests of our civilization." This is the second time the question whether nude figures should be permitted on statues in public parks has shaken St. Louis. Last spring a controversy arose over the nude figure on a monument of the German-American journalists, Pretorius, Shurz and Daenzer, entitled the "Naked Truth," but the design was finally accepted after many weeks of heated discussion. Miss Nancy Coonsman, whose design for the fountain was accepted, insists that some people do not appreciate art.

New York's Underground System

(From the Los Angeles Financial News)

New York has the most difficult operating proposition in the whole field of railroad, says the New York Evening Post, according to views expressed by an independent engineer widely acknowledged as an authority. The so-called "Safety First" movement was under discussion, continues the Post, and when asked to specify, the engineer in question replied:

"We have right here under our nose an operating problem that makes ordinary railroad engineering child's play. I mean the subway. How many people realize that every one of those ten-car express trains running under a minute-and-a-half headway have twice as much power as the steam locomotive that draw the fastest limited trains across the country? How many railroad men know how it is possible for a system designed for a capacity of 400,000 people daily to carry safely 1,200,000 passengers every twenty-four hours?"

"Those questions and others," continues the Post, "when put to operating officials of the Interborough developed the fact that a ten-car train in the subway consists of seven motor cars and three trailer cars. The seven motor cars, which are operated by the multiple unit control, have a total of 2800 horsepower, which is about 50 per cent more powerful than the large passenger locomotives that draw the limited trains on steam roads. This tremendous power enables the trains to accelerate at the rate of about one and one-half miles per hour per second, and to maintain scheduled speed, including stops, of twenty-five miles per hour.

"It was pointed out that to maintain the rush-hour express schedule of a train every minute and forty-eight seconds, the management was confronted with the problem of making quick stops as well as quick starts. To secure rapid deceleration the trains were equipped with a new type of electro-pneumatic brake, which, when applied, gives a simultaneous application on all cars throughout the train and has a braking rate of about two miles per hour per second.

"All subway express tracks are equipped with an automatic block signaling system with safety overlap so designed that a train running past a danger signal is automatically stopped. Approaching all express stations there is a system of speed control signals designed so that a train can safely approach an occupied station to within a short distance, thereby reducing the interval between trains and increasing the capacity of the line. This signaling system, together with all track and road work, is under constant supervision by a force of trained men.

"Another safety feature is a device attached to the controller of each motor car and is known as 'dead man's button.' This device is placed in operation any time the motorman becomes incapacitated and the release of a certain pressure that has to be exerted by the motorman, automatically shuts off the current and applies the brakes in emergency position. There is also a device throughout the subway known as the emergency alarm system, by which any employee, by pulling an alarm, is able to automatically cut off all the power in the third rail in that particular section. This device makes it possible during any emergency to automatically deaden the third rail in the subway so that if necessary passengers can walk with safety on the tracks. Throughout the East River tunnels of that section of the subway connecting Manhattan Island with Brooklyn, it is so arranged that a dispatcher who is constantly on duty at Bowling Green has complete control of the tunnels. He has an illuminated signal or diagram which indicates in what signal block each train is located. He also has complete control of the power in the third rail; also has control of the duplicate lighting system and from his office can also operate the blower system creating drafts throughout the tunnel in either direction. Throughout this part of the subway system telephones, emergency alarms, fire extinguishers, and hose connections are located every 300 feet. Also, to aid in the movement, the subway is equipped with private telephone systems, so as to get immediate connection.

All men entering the transportation department are assigned to the lower ranks and promoted according to their ability. Before being allowed to assume any responsibility in the movement of trains, every employee must graduate from the company's training school. All trainmen, conductors, switchmen and motormen must periodically attend classes in this school and be at all times prepared to pass an examination as to their knowledge of the duties of their respective positions. Every motorman and switchman must pass a rigid physical examination and show normal eyesight, both as to range and color-perception, hearing, heart action, respiration, etc., and must undergo such an examination every two and one-half years.

ORANGE

AN EASTER PROGRAM BY THE CHILDREN

(By Staff Correspondent.)

ORANGE, April 10.—Circle No. 6, of the Methodist Ladies' Aid Society, entertained all of the other circles yesterday afternoon in the league room at the church. The occasion was the general quarterly Aid Society meeting.

The room was decorated in streamers of blue and white, the colors of Circle 6, while in the center of the room was a large design in blue, a circle with a "6" in the center.

An Easter program was given by the children of the church, proving one of the most entertaining features of the day. One of the novel ideas introduced into the program was the making of about 125 paper Easter lilies, to the stems of which were attached written quotations. These were read publicly by the ladies to whom they were distributed, and were heard with great interest.

Refreshments of lemon ice, cakes, roasted and salted walnuts, were served before the program concluded. A silver offering netted $10, which was turned into the building fund. About 125 ladies were in attendance.

A very large crowd witnessed the

GRAY HAIR BECOMES DARK, THICK, GLOSSY

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

You May Make This
From an Old Gown

It is odd how fashions have turned themselves around and sometimes look hind-side-before as in this very new dinner frock of tulle and satin and beads that a few seasons ago would have been worn with the apron in the front and fullness in the back.

But all things change, and what more than the modes? And if you want a suggestion for making over an old gown, here you have it. The long sweep of line is an enviable thing to accomplish, the girdle has the right waisted thickness, and the corsage is a wisp of flesh pink tulle, lined here and there with flesh pink silk, the coloring increasing the effect of transparency.

performance of "Windmills of Holland," a two act operetta, presented last evening at Campbell's Opera House, by the music and art departments of Orange High School.

The play brought out some excellent singing and acting on the part of local students. The costuming and stage decorating was carried out by the pupils under the direction of Miss Mabel Parker, art instructor, while the operetta itself was directed by Miss Winifred M. Haig, music instructor. Solos and choruses made up an excellent program, which centered about the business and love affairs of a rich Holland farmer's family.

The Misses Jessie and Henrietta Hughes, Marguerite Wood, Edith Kuechel, and Messrs. Eugene Park, Frank Aldrich, Alvin and Vernon Standfield and Leighton Bascom, were the principals of the cast. All rendered splendid solos, besides carrying their lines almost perfectly.

The accompaniment of the high school orchestra was responsible for much of the play's success. A special feature was contained in the Indian club drill by six girls, given between acts, and followed by a flashlight exhibition of the same drill, given by some fair athlete whose identity was never revealed, the stage being in darkness during her act.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Campbell welcomed a baby daughter at their home on South Cambridge street yesterday morning.

FAMILY WAS SAVED BY MOTHER'S PENSION

First Person to Benefit Under Illinois Act Was a Woman Whose Children Would Have Been Taken from Her

CHICAGO, April 10.—In the first week in June, 1911, a woman with three children, two clinging to her skirts and one snuggling in her lap, sat in a straight back chair before a judge in the juvenile court of Chicago. This court room was across the street from Hull House, a block from the Mary Crane Nursery, and a dozen agents of organized charity were there to aid in solving the problem of the destitute mother. A probation officer reported on the "case"—the destitute mother in court terminology is a "case." Mrs. Brian was a typical case. Eighteen months before her husband had been injured while at work in the steel mills. He lived for several months and then died. She had gone through the grade and high schools and had hope of a decent life. When the accident occurred they had $500 they had saved to buy a home on the installment plan.

The doctors and living expenses before the workman died took part of this hoard, so painfully gathered. After the funeral Mrs. Brian set out to earn a living for herself and her three children, the oldest under five years and one an infant. Like thousands of other women she thought of keeping roomers and used the last of her savings to pay an installment on a furnished house in the poor district where she expected to shelter homeless working people at so much per week. The business failed, as it was destined to do, for a woman with three children cannot keep up a rooming house even for poorly paid working people. One after another of the guests left and the bright day in June found her in the dinky juvenile court where she had been taken by agents of organized charity. "Your honor, this woman is about to be set out on the street. She cannot pay her rent. But she is able to work and we plan to place her children in an institution so she can go to work somewhere."

"I don't know what to do," said the mother to the judge. "This lady said, when I asked her for help, that I would have to 'put my children away' and go to work. I wish there was some other way," and she held her baby closer and tried to include the two standing at her knee in the protecting embrace. "Did you collect anything from the steel company?" asked the judge. "Not yet, my case comes up in three months," said the woman hopefully, but the distracted face of the judge did not reflect that hope. He knew the courts too well. He had been on that bench for three years. Almost daily he held conferences with the world's most famous charity workers. All Protestant and Catholic churches of the great city had paid agents there to help. Millions were raised by charity, ostensibly to relieve just such persons as Mrs. Brian.

The judge, probation officers and charity agents held a little conference. "Where shall we send the children?" was the question. They knew no other way. Not one of these court officers or charity experts could conceive of any other way than breaking up the family—taking these children away from their mother, the supreme crime of civilization, punishment worse than death for the offense of poverty. For three years the judge has seen this thing go on. His face was haggard; he looked like he was ready for the hospital. He was too humane to do this awful thing day after day and not feel it. The charity workers appeared less affected. To send the babies to an institution would cost the county $10 per month for each child—thirty dollars in all. They were ready to pay this sum to an asylum for taking care of the poverty stricken children, but there was no way the money could be paid to the mother for performing the functions of which nature intended her, and for which she was so well prepared. The ax was about to fall. The wagon was backed up to the door. Tim nurses entered to take the babies from the mother's arms, in all probability forever, when something happened. During the progress of the "trial" two men entered. One of them was Henry Neil, who for a year had been watching this destruction of families—the punishment of women and children for poverty, and all in the name of kindness.

That same week Governor Deneen had signed a bill that was to revolutionize the practice of juvenile courts and prevent the separation of mothers and their children. In the name of sweet charity, a habit that has become so common that it was a vested right of the charity organizations, Neil had presented the bill to the legislature and it was such a little thing that it crept through almost unnoticed. Organized charity experts knew nothing of it. It was an amendment to the juvenile court act in these words: "If the parent or parents of such dependent or neglected child are poor and unable to properly care for said child, but are otherwise proper guardians and it is for the welfare of such child to remain at home, the court may enter an order finding such facts and fixing the amount of money necessary to enable the parent or parents to properly care for such child, and thereupon it shall be the duty of the county board or through its agents or otherwise to pay to such parents at such time as said order may designate, the amount so specified for the care of such dependent or neglected child until the further order of the court."

This law was to go into effect July 1, 1911. The family was to be broken up, nevertheless, because poverty cannot wait three weeks. Neil conferred with the judge. He agreed to pay Mrs. Brian $25 a month until the pension law went into effect, and on July 1, the day the act became useful, Mrs. Brian was pensioned, the first woman who ever drew a pension for being a mother. She still lives with her own children and since then almost 2000 mothers have been pensioned in Chicago alone and the system is at work from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

STREET AND ROAD TREES

The Register desires to call the attention of the new County Forestry Commission especially and of all beauty loving thrifty citizens generally, to the article elsewhere in this paper entitled "Beauty and Profit in Shade Trees." This article is from the pen of Reginald Brinsmead, the Register's special staff writer, who has traveled extensively and made a life-study (accompanied by practical life work) of the subjects on which he writes.

We believe that it is of the utmost importance that the work of the Forestry Commission should be extended to the byways and not confined merely to the highways. If the work of the commission is to be successful it must have the enthusiastic support and co-operation of property owners generally.

Read Mr. Brinsmead's article and think it over carefully.

THE TREE BUTCHER

At this time of the year the tree butcher appears upon the scene. As a rule he is paid by the day. The more he whacks out of the shade tree the more money he makes, and he is a practical person whose artistic temperament does not interfere with his making a living. He is capable, in a physical and moral sense, of destroying in 100 minutes the growth of 100 years. In many instances he knows more about how trees should be trimmed, or where they should be trimmed, than a pig knows about geometry. The mutilated trees he leaves bleeding in his wake silently attest his vandalism. Persons who have shade trees should pause to think about how slowly limbs and trunks grow, and how quickly they may be destroyed, and how short human life is, and how hard it is to acquire good shade trees, and how much, therefore, unutilized trees are worth in the way of added value when real estate is to be sold. Oftener than not it is better to let the shade trees alone. If for any reason any cutting of branches is advisable it is well to get an expert to do the work. As experts are rare, and proclaimed experts numerous and importunate, it is very well to sit nearby and look on when any cutting is done. By halting the vandal and sparing a branch you may save more than the worth of your time. When the fever for rearrangement strikes you it is all right to swap the furniture about, putting the secretaire where the sofa was during the winter and reversing the order of the grandfather clock and the whatnot, for there is nothing final in such arrangements. But when the trees are mutilated the damage is done, and nothing can be done to repair it.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

American Smelter Earnings

(From the Los Angeles Financial News.)

The annual report of the American Smelting and Refining Company for the year ended December 31 last, shows a balance on the common of $3,736,541, equal to 4.47 per cent, as compared with 11.47 per cent for the previous year. Gross income was $13,429,933, which is $3,329,566 less than 1912, and total charges against gross income were $3,673,394, or $2,066,431 less than the year previous. These brought net income to $9,756,540, or $1,323,135 less than for 1912. Preferred dividends called for $6,020,000, and common dividends $2,000,000, leaving a profit and loss surplus for the year of $1,738,540, which brought the total profit and loss surplus to $18,495,942 as of December 31 last. In 1912 Smelters increased its profit and loss surplus $3,059,677. President Daniel Guggenheim, in his report of the American Smelting and Refining Company and the American Smelters Security Company, says:

"The earnings of the company from smelting and refining works and from mines are $3,570,532 less than during the preceding twelve months. This decrease, however, has arisen largely from the fact that ores in considerable quantities, which have been mined by the company from its own properties, and are awaiting transportation facilities, are only valued at the cost of mining, and will not be given a commercial value until they are sampled and assayed after arrival at the smelter. A large credit of this character has simply been deferred awaiting normal conditions. There has been expended $2,368,789 in increasing the capacity of smelting and refining works, and in improved processes. There has also been expended in the upkeep of the property and equipment $2,716,635, which has been charged directly to operating expenses. The net increase to property account for the year is $843,271.

"The Garfield Water Company and the Garfield Improvement Company, owned jointly by the American Smelting Securities Company and the Utah Copper Company, and having valuable properties contiguous to the Garfield plant of the company at Salt Lake City, Utah, have capitalized their indebtedness, and the consequent increase in the investment account of the company is offset by the decrease in the account: 'Advances to affiliated companies.' All of the investments are carried on the books at conservative valuations. The metal stocks at smelting and refining works are all carried at the usual conservative valuations. The current assets of the company have been largely increased by the reduction in metal stocks on hand and now exceed the current liabilities by $7,000,000, all of which excess is represented by cash on hand, demand loans or temporary investments properly secured and bearing good rates of interest.

"In view of the very unfortunate condition of affairs in Mexico, by reason of which so large a part of the company's property is at present unproductive, the directors feel that the shareholders have reason to congratulate themselves on the fact that the earnings of the common stock for the year equal 7.47 per cent."

LOSERS SERVE BANQUET

Ladies of Fraternal Brotherhood Lose in Contest—Penalty Was Feed to Gentlemen

The regular meeting of the Fraternal Brotherhood was held last night and the members were entertained with a 7 o'clock banquet, this time having won favor among the secret societies of the city.

The banquet last night was given to the gentlemen of the lodge for having been the victors of the contest just ended, the ladies of the lodge being the losers having to be hostesses. This accounts for the fine spread and the way the men folks "went after" that roast beef and mashed potatoes was enough to tell the ladies that their efforts were appreciated.

The contest was a close one from start to finish, both sides bringing in several new members and with their captains and lieutenants there were some great skirmishes for members. The ladies were under the able leadership of Mrs. P. A. Trickey and the men under Fred Marsile.

After the banquet was enjoyed the regular order of business was taken up and under the head of "for good of society" speeches were made by Brother J. J. May, district manager; E. G. Huntington and others.

Col. W. F. Heathman, speaking for the men, praised the ladies for the splendid banquet and paid high tribute to the Brotherhood corps.

—O—

In Honor of Miss Dobson

A very pleasant and enjoyable time was spent at 1514 Willis street last night, where Misses Mary and Jessie Pearson entertained a jolly crowd of young people. A dainty lunch was served in the afternoon to the girls. Cecil Bruner roses were used for decoration in the dining room, and each girl found a lovely rose at her plate. White and pink roses were used abundantly in the other rooms of the house.

The occasion was in honor of Miss Minnie Dobson from Los Angeles, who is visiting her cousins at the Pearson home.

Music, games and readings furnished entertainment for the evening. After time had passed all too quickly, ice cream and cake were served by the hostesses.

Those present besides the hostesses were Miss Dobson, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wiley Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Pearson, Misses Lela Sebastian, Margaret Blake, Ruth and Gertrude Kohler, Helena Ford and Gertrude Kanaawyer; Messrs. William and J. P. Sebastian, Frank Blake, Ray Ford, Ray Kanaawyer and Julian Mathews.

WORMS HARVESTING A CROP OF WEEDS

For a little while this morning W. J. Leiser might have thought he was back in Missouri among the real old fashioned army worms. Leiser has a ranch at the corner of Seventeenth and Baker streets, planted to walnut and apricot trees, and he has allowed the weeds to grow up thick with the expectation of plowing them under. When he was at the ranch Wednesday he saw nothing of worms. When he went back this morning he found that worms had just about stripped the weeds of their leaves. He inquired around among the neighbors and learned that their crops had not been damaged.

Leiser knows something about the Missouri army worm, which wipes out whole fields, coming and going suddenly.

DAPHNE POLLARD STAR OF COMEDY FULL OF LAUGHS

"The Girl Behind the Counter," which was put on at the Grand last night by the Anderson Gaiety Company, has more laughs to the square inch than anything that has been seen here this season. It also boasted by far and away the best cast recently seen here in a musical comedy. Daphne Pollard, a vest-pocket edition of a musical comedy star, is funny in inverse proportion to her size and her dancing and grimacing (making faces is a fine art with the diminutive star) were a whole show in themselves. Myrtle Dingwall, Ann Tasker, and Maud Beatty were other planets that shone resplendent, each with a charm and style of fun-making all her own. Ann Tasker possesses the only really worth while feminine voice in the company, and her airy-fairy dancing is pleasing. Maud Beatty was the comedy fat lady, Mrs. Schniff with two husbands under the sod, and a live one of Teutonic extraction, suddenly elevated into the millionaire class by way of sausages. Mrs. Schniff had social ambitions and a large and stunning vocabulary, after the manner of Mrs. Malaprop. She boasted an elegant "crematory" in her mansion filled with rare tropical plants—and to all and sundry who would lend an ear, she told an absorbing tale of a recent operation for appendicitis when she had been "under a calisthenic" for three hours.

There was an excellent take-off on Father Ricard and his sunspots, and his rival, the Chinese weather prophet whose frog tells him what the sun spots tell Father Ricard. The black-frocked solemn priest glances heaven-ward and in solemn accents declares that "it will rain tomorrow all over Northern and Southern California and Watts." The Chinaman cheerfully disagrees, while Jack Pollard, the amiable Frenchman says, "Sure, it will rain on the all-over earth, for it is ze merry spring, and all things in ze ground shall come up." "Oh, Lord, no!" gasps Mrs. Schniff. "I have two husbands there!" Joe Kane, as Henry Schniff, is one of the best funny men now held in captivity. Orral Humphries, as the empty-headed British Lordship, was amazingly gotten up, and fearfully funny, as was also Bobby Roberts as Geoffrey Hampton. How any human being can assume an expression—or rather, so total a lack of expression as Bobby successfully holds all the evening, is little short of a marvel. It would have been terrible if he had felt called upon to sneeze.

The show girls were more than usually good looking, and stunningly gowned, even to dyed wigs of startling hue.

The pony ballet boasted the plumpest bunch of girls on record and their work was way up in class A. Sacks and trouserettes left an exposure of totally uncovered epidermis, whereupon one feels moved to remark that the human knee, even of the feminine variety, is not an object of flawless beauty. Even the plumpiest ones looked decidedly—well knobby, to say the least, and one pair looked as if they had been playing marbles. Silk stockings are of course expensive, but they are kind to under-pinnings that are a bit shy on complexion, and it is probably vanity rather than some sterner sense of propriety that will keep silk stockings from following petticoats into oblivion.

Arthur Clough, whose good looks and pleasing voice have several times made an excellent impression here, was well cast last night for the young American millionaire. Arthur Clough doesn't look like a musical comedy man—whenever he appears one has the feeling that he is an extremely good looking young man who has just stepped in out of real life, and had been prevailed upon to sing a song and stay a little while.

Clarence Lydston was among the familiar friends last night, and his singing and dancing with Daphne Pollard never failed to bring the applause.

achievement of M. R. and H. B. Hen-

Heninger brothers in 1906 acquired thirty-four acres of land. This was the first addition made by them to

was made a year ago last fall—20

there was, four years ago, on the west side of the street, between First

DRINK HOT TEA FOR A BAD COLD

Get a small package of Hamburg
Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Thee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time during the day or before retiring. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure
grip, as it opens the pores of the skin, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus driving a cold from the system.

Try it the next time you suffer from a cold or the grip. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore safe and harmless.

the remainder barley fields. Now the streets in that section are practically all paved and trees uniformly planted on the curbs. Houses, all imposing, comfortable and attractive, now mark the section that was formerly nothing but barren ground.

The section being developed is one of the most ideal for residences in the city. Heninger brothers realize this fact and in planning for additional bungalows, every consideration that could possibly make for modernity is acted upon. One feature not found in any other part of the city is that all telephone and electric light poles have been taken off the streets and put in the alleys.

The third and latest addition to the Heninger holdings, that on Ross street, has been platted, side-walked, graded, sewered and lighted. This section is to be acted upon by the city council Monday night. On Ross street sweet bay trees have been planted. They are interspersed with palms. Camphor and two varieties of acacia trees, also interspersed with palms, are greatly favored by the Heningers.

The remarkable development of the southwest section was one of the factors which caused the new Polytechnic high school to be located there.

Building was commenced by the Heninger brothers in the fall of 1906
and has been kept up continuously since then. The firm has a force of men working all the time. The 120 houses built so far have been disposed of as soon as built. In fact, Heninger brothers have had difficulty at times to supply the demand. Just at present the firm has no houses on hand to supply an unlooked for demand, should any happen to arise. It has always been the intention of the builders to keep two or three houses
in readiness besides those constructed under contracts. For four months now the demand has exceeded the supply.

140 lots remain to have houses built upon them. The bungalows that will be put on the market are to be of even better design than ever before.
"We are always on the lookout for new ideas," said Mr. M. R. Heninger today. "Whenever a new departure that would make for the increased comfort of our prospective buyers comes up we are among the first to adopt it."

One theory of the firm is that no
lots whatever should be sold to speculators. Lots are sold only to people who intend to build. Speculators very seldom do anything to improve property, and improvement being the first consideration of the Heningers, lots are not sold to people buying merely for speculation.

One of the most striking things about the sections improved by Hen-inger brothers is that all parts are kept up equally well. Curbs are kept clean and trees trimmed. Weeds are not allowed to grow. A neat, attractive appearance of all the Heninger
property is of paramount importance to the firm.

Paving operations on vacant lots
owned by these two men have alone cost over $6000. The cost of putting in sidewalks on the new 20-acre tract will come to more than $2000.

TUSTIN SCHOOL IN LOMBARDIC STYLE

A design in the Lombardic style of architecture is the one finally decided upon by the school trustees of Tustin
for the new $40,000 school structure.
The firm of Elwing and Tedford is now working on the plans, which call for exterior walls of granite-faced brick and a red tile roof. The wings of the building will have flat roofs and these will be used for outdoor class rooms. Main auditorium and class rooms will combine to give a seating capacity of 700. A feature will be a kindergarten, fresh air class room.

One of the most pleasing features of the school will be that both the front and back views of the structure will be equally attractive to passersby. A ground space of 192 by 150 feet will be occupied by the school when completed.

WILL SOON START TUSTIN RESIDENCE

Contracts were let Wednesday to Fred Siefert for the new Tustin residence of C. E. Sauer. Architect J. F.
Flood Walker designed the house, which is to cost about $2500. It will be, when finished, one of the most picturesque homes in the county. A feature will be an asbestos roof.

PYTHIAN HOME WILL BE BUILT

Mother Colony is Selected as Site for Widows and Orphans' Refuge

Anaheim, it has been officially decided, will be the seat of the widows and orphans' home which is to be established by Silver Star lodge, Knights of Pythias, of Los Angeles. This announcement was formally made to Anaheim lodge, K. of P., at the meeting Wednesday night by a committee from Silver Star lodge consisting of General J. O. Royer, Major McCleary, commander of the order, and Lieutenant Williamson. This committee was appointed for the purpose of conveying to Anaheim brethren the decision of the Silver Star lodge.

The site selected is on General Royer's estate in the west end. This site was offered many months ago
when the establishment of a home was first under consideration. After viewing the site and considering its advantages the lodge voted to accept it and build the home thereon.

Silver Star lodge holds a unique position in Pythianism inasmuch as it is the only lodge in the United States composed entirely of policemen. No applicant for membership is eligible unless he holds a job on the Los Angeles police force and is in good repute. General Royer's application was accepted only after he had complied with the requirements and became a policeman. He is patrolman No. 312 on Chief Sebastian's roll, but he is not expected to be a very active member or patrol a very long beat.

Committees are now at work both
from the K. of P.'s and the Pythian Sisters soliciting subscriptions for the construction of the buildings. Just how much is required has not yet been decided but the structure will be handsome and modern and will be amply large for the purpose. Entrance to the home will be limited to the widows and orphans of members of Silver Star lodge but as that order has more than 300 members and all are engaged in a dangerous profession, it is figured that it will always have many inmates. It is believed this home will be the pioneer of other Pythian homes on the same grounds.
The Anaheim boys long ago talked of such a proposition and will probably build a home adjoining. Other orders may follow suit and a group of widows' and orphans' homes eventually spring up around this nucleus from Los Angeles.

On Sunday, May 3, Silver Star lodge
and the Pythian Temple in conjunction with Anaheim lodge and Anaheim Temple, will hold a basket picnic at Columbia Gardens in West Anaheim.
This is the occasion of the annual outing of the Los Angeles members, and they are coming down in force on special trains to break bread and salt
with their Anaheim brethren and sisters. Members of other lodges may possibly be present to help swell the crowd and add to the entertainment.
The Los Angeles force will arrive here in the morning on special trains. They will be met at the depot by Anaheim lodge and temple and escorted in procession to the grounds. With their brilliant uniforms, brass bands and gold and glitter, they will make an imposing parade.

60,000 CARLOADS MAKE FINE CROP

California Fruit Growers' Exchange Enlists Aid to Extend Marketing Field

With a 60,000-car orange crop a possibility of the near future, perhaps even this year, the California Fruit Growers' Exchange has enlisted the aid of the United States Department of Agriculture and the State Department in extending the marketing field to include Tasmania, New Zealand, Australia and the Philippines. A campaign to enlarge the European market will be waged
through the Exchange's London agency.

According to word received yesterday from the Secretary of Agriculture, arrangements have just been made for special consular reports from these countries covering such matters as present citrus imports, prices, demand, both present and potential, and water and rail transit and costs. The Bureau of Insular Affairs of the War Department will conduct the survey in the Philippines through specially appointed agents, supplementing whatever information may be obtained by the consular agents.

"Revised estimates show an orange crop for 1913-14 of 45,000 cars," said
General Manager Powell of the Exchange yesterday. "This is the second largest crop in history, but, giving normal growing conditions, the coming crop should run from 55,000
to 60,000 cars, for there is a large acreage coming into bearing this year."

completion of the Smith building as possible.

Arrangements have practically been completed whereby Mr. C. D. Hayes

been in this city for two months, having come here from Portland, Oregon, will handle a stock of notions. His store will be in the nature of a variety

goods and notions business for twenty years in Portland.

meeting of the Fullerton Club which was held at the headquarters of the year showed an increase in membership of 41 per cent; that all the club's furniture and equipment had been paid for, and there is a good balance of cash on hand in the treasury. The question of incorporating the organization under the state law and building their own club house was discussed by the members, and met with favor. This plan will be considered further before definite action is taken.

LOS ANGELES PRODUCE MARKET

The demand for butter has been good, but not sufficient to prevent a decline. The price went to 23 cents yesterday on reports of lower eastern markets and a price of 22½ cents in San Francisco. First was lower also. There is little country butter to trade in, most farmers selling their cream to the creamery and those making butter selling it to various small stores and individual customers. Second-grade butter is less plentiful at this time than it has been in months. Buying of the best butter for storage purposes continues in a heavy way and is the only support the market has. Were it not for this demand the commodity would be selling well below 20 cents.

There was no change in the egg market, demand being exceptionally heavy on account of the Easter buying.

Potato arrivals were light and ordinary river stock was firm. The demand for new potatoes is exceptionally good to supply the Sunday
dinners with that delicacy.

BIG PRICE FOR A VALENCIA GROVE

John Bruns is Paid $25,000
for Ten Acres at Villa Park

Ten acres of Valencia oranges were sold this week through Wilson & Wil-acre.

The orchard is the south ten acres of a twenty-acre piece that was owned by John Bruns of Santa Ana. It is located on Tustin avenue in the Villa Park section, in a district where land values have gone up and where income from the land justifies high prices.

On the place is a fine grove of four-year-old Valencia oranges. George C.
Roy is the purchaser. Roy lives in Santa Ana.

EL TORO SCHOOL TO BE DESIGNED BY LOCAL FIRM

big class rooms, an office and a library,
the latter to be used for a semi-public library. Architecturally the building will follow the Italian style of design.
The walls will be of golden pressed brick and the roof will be of Spanish

LAST DAY OF COOKING SCHOOL MUCH ENJOYED

Miss Peet Has Made Many Friends--- Santa Ana Women Highly Appreciative

The biggest crowd of the week greeted Miss Peet at the Elks Hall this afternoon, for the closing session of the Register's Cooking School. Friday proved a great success, the lecture-demonstration was pronounced the most interesting one of the week. This was probably due in part to the enthusiasm of the audience. Though all were regretting that this is the last day of the school, it was a very jolly, highly appreciative audience, and the afternoon from start to finish was a most enjoyable one.

Miss Peet did all she promised in the frying line. She fried all afternoon without smoke; she fried one food after another, including fish, using the same frying fat over and over, and yet leaving no trace of the flavor of one food, even the fish, in any of the others. Miss Peet says frying properly done, is an altogether wholesome way of preparing food, and she demonstrated the proper method of doing it. She says that the aversion of the stomach to foods saturated with fat is a perfectly natural one, but that it is quite possible to fry foods in such a way that they will not be saturated with the frying fat, but will be quite dainty and wholly digestible. Miss Peet proved all this to be quite true, as she prepared and served her fried menu of oysters, fish, chops and doughnuts. All were deliciously crisp and brown, without a suggestion of grease, and many cooks who had wholly eschewed fried foods, because they considered them indigestible, were glad to learn that this method of food preparation is a safe and wholesome one.

MISS PEET SAYS GOOD-BYE

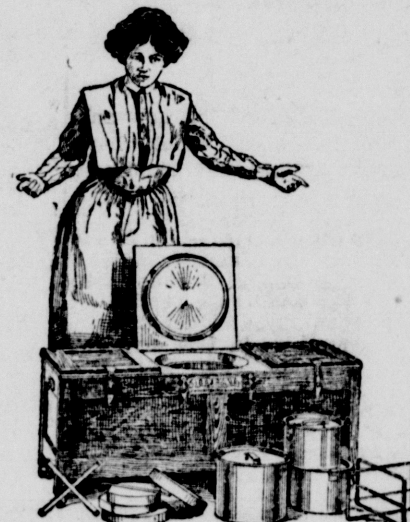

It was a rather difficult matter to bring the cooking school to a close this afternoon. After the lecture-demonstration, after the last crumb of delicious foods had been disposed of, by the happy and grateful throng, after the last question had been asked and answered, the women still lingered to tell Miss Peet how much the school had meant to them, how they hated to see her go, and how much they hoped she would come again. Miss Peet has made many friends in Santa Ana and the women here, as well as their families, will remember her gratefully until she comes again with a new message about better homes and better cooking, to help women in their great work of house-keeping and home-making and with new, delicious food to delight the palates of the men.

Little Talks On Babyology

BY ANNA STEESE RICHARDSON

Director of the Better Babies Bureau of the Woman's Home Companion

NURSERY EMERGENCIES AND HOW TO MEET THEM

(Copyright, 1913, by the Woman's Home Companion.)

The most common emergency in the nursery is vomiting. To the shame of many mothers, this is a recurrent emergency. The child is relieved, but not cured. The cause it not sought and removed.

Vomiting means an error in diet, acute or chronic. Sometimes a child has overloaded its stomach without the knowledge or consent of the parents. Again these recurrent "stomach attacks" are due to regular diet which does not agree with the child. In the latter case, the vomiting must first be treated, and then the diet must be changed.

When the vomiting starts, all food must be stopped, bottle good, breast milk and even water, until the attack is over. One of two cathartics should be given, castor-oil or calomel. Calomel is more apt to be retained. The dose is one-tenth of one-fourth of a grain at intervals of half an hour until one grain has been given to a baby, two grains to an older child. If the child is old enough to drink from a firm. All food must be stopped at once, and a cathartic must be given immediately. Castor-oil is the safest and most soothing cathartic for young children. Up to six months, the dose is a teaspoonful of oil. After that a tablespoonful may be administered with good results. If the small stomach will not retain the oil, give calomel in the same dose prescribed for vomiting. This treatment will suffice until a doctor is summoned. Sometimes it proves so efficacious that a physician is not required.

But better far than curing diarrhea is preventing it.

It is generally caused by unclean milk and wrong food. Keep the milk for the breast-fed or bottle-fed baby clean and cool. Do not allow the breast-fed or bottle-fed baby to overload its stomach.

Croup is another nursery terror. This is the spasmodic contraction of the larynx, and may accompany a severe cold or may manifest its presence before the mother realizes that the child has taken cold. Some babies go through their nursery days without a single attack of this terrifying malady. Others are subject to it.

Usually the patient wakes suddenly, gasping for breath. A mother who has once heard the sound never fails to recognize it in its first stages. The breathing is slow, noisy and heavy. Sometimes there is a metallic, barking cough. Again this may be missing. Doctor Bennett, in "The Healthy Baby," prescribes the following treatment for croup:

"(1) Wring out dry in cold water (60 deg.), a soft cloth folded into at least six thicknesses. Place this quickly about the neck from ear to ear, underneath the chin. Cover with a piece of oiled silk or thick waxed paper, which is held on by a handkerchief tied about the neck. Change this every half hour until the croup has subsided, when it should be discontinued.

"(2) Cover the bed or crib with a sheet and set the croup kettle going with the spout underneath the sheet. (A steaming tea-kettle kept boiling by an alcohol lamp or gas stove may be rigged where a croup kettle is not at hand, care being taken not to set fire to the bed clothing.) This may be continued for hours or until the noisy breathing has subsided, even after the child has gone to sleep.

"(3) If the breathing is extreme, or if the above measures are not effective, or if the croup is caused by indigestion, administer one of two teaspoonfuls of syrup of ipecac, which will produce vomiting and cause the child to relax at once.

"Suitable medicinal measures should be instituted through the day to prevent a recurrence of the attack the next night, and proper treatment begun to prevent further attacks."

Convulsions are symptoms of an extremely bad condition in the child. They are not a necessary event in the progress of teething, as some mothers think. Permitted to increase in frequency and violence, they develop into that terrible disease, epilepsy. As symptoms of disease, they should be followed up by a visit to the family doctor. As an emergency, they may be treated as follows until the services of a doctor can be secured:

"(1) Loosen the clothing, but do not take it off, except the shoes and stockings.

"(2) Place the child upon a bed or table with his legs hanging over the edge from the knees down.

"(3) Put his feet and lower legs into a pail of hot water to which has been added one tablespoonful of powdered mustard, if it is at hand. If there is no mustard, use hot water alone. Be very careful that it is not hot enough to burn.

"(4) Put an ice cap to the head; lacking an ice cap, use plenty of cracked ice done up in a towel.

"(5) Give an enema of warm soap-suds. Repeat, if it is not retained.

"(6) As soon as the child is able to swallow, give a large dose of castor-oil."

"The Healthy Baby"

When the baby has a fall this may or may not attain the dignity of a nursery emergency. A child can escape real injury in what may first appear to the mother as a very bad fall. The effect of a fall most to be dreaded is injury to the spine or the brain. I recall one particular case where a child was dropped by its nurse and made very little outcry. In fact it became listless, dull and apathetic. It dozed off and on for twenty-four hours and then suddenly the mother discovered that the child had lost the use of its legs. The blow to the spine had caused paralysis.

When the child strikes the head in falling and develops listlessness and drowsiness, or makes no outcry, does not even cry, the mother should have it examined by a physician even though the baby may not become unconscious. There are cases on record where children of three and four years were counted as defective or idiots when a surgical examination developed the fact that a bit of bone was pressing on the brain and making all the trouble. The fracture could be traced to a fall during infancy, to which no attention had been paid. The pressure removed, the child had regained the use of its faculties and developed into a normal being. The mother who suspects that the brain is even slightly affected by a fall should have her baby examined immediately.

Where the arm or leg is hurt the child may stop crying and resume its playing in a short time, merely shielding the injured member. If at the end of several hours he continues to play without using the hand or foot affected, the mother will do well to have him looked over by a doctor. An astonishing number of children will resume playing despite a broken arm, leg, collar bone or rib.

One of the common emergencies of childhood is the burn. I know of nothing which will make a child cry more terrifyingly or give the mother more alarm than a burn, whether from actual flame or from steam, or boiling water. Too much care cannot be taken on to ward off this emergency. Hot water should not be left standing around where a child can tumble or dip into it. Lamps, candles, etc., should be placed beyond his reach. Matches should never be left where he can strike them. However, careful as the mother may be, children will burn themselves, and a mother should be prepared for the emergency.

Keep on hand gauze bandages in several widths and a bottle of sweet-oil and lime water in equal proportion. This is effective if the skin is merely reddened or inflamed. If the burn destroys the first layer of skin, causing blisters to arise, there is danger of infection. Cover the burn with a piece of gauze soaked in a weak antiseptic solution (one corrosive sublimate tablet or one teaspoonful of creolin to a quart of water).

The same antiseptic treatment may be used for the more severe burns where the flesh is actually seared, in which case, after applying the antiseptic solution and gauze, the child should immediately have the care of a physician.

Infection, lockjaw and intense suffering, if not death, may result from a neglected burn.

When a child chokes, never strike it on the back while it is in an upright position. Turn it over on your lap, head downward, or even let it hang by its heels when slapping it on the back.

In these little talks on Babyology I have tried to discuss all the common problems which the average mother must solve. In conclusion I want to say that if any mother has an anxiety about her baby not touched on in these articles, I will be glad to hear from her, to answer her questions, if I am able, and if not, to pass them on to one of the various physicians who have done so much to make the work of the Better Babies Bureau possible.

The correspondence which has reached my desk as a result of these little talks goes to prove that the American mother is alive to the importance of preventive medicine as a substitute for soothing syrup, patent nostrums and "cures" of any sort. They are learning that prevention of disease is not only possible, but it is the child's due. We are entering upon the era of Better Babies, happier homes, and freer mothers, freer because a healthy baby never makes a slave of its mother.

THE LOAF OF BREAD

The widespread propaganda for the purity of the food and drug products of this country has resulted in the necessary attempt to standardize all articles which enter into these categories. In the case of certain familiar materials like sugar and coffee this has not involved any formidable difficulties. The question as to what constitutes mince pie, on the other hand, has aroused storms of claims and counterclaims on behalf of the recipes of different regions and generations. Like numerous other illustrations which might be cited, this experience has served to call attention to the really great diversity of our food concoctions and the pardonable laxness in the use of current terms that appear in the American menu. One may well apply here the proverb: "De gustibus non disputandum est."

It might be expected that so common an article of diet as bread would exhibit some uniformity of composition. Yet the chemist of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station reports that two hundred loaves of bread, representing the product of seventy-nine Connecticut, one Springfield (Mass.) and three New York bakeries "showed wide variations in all their ingredients." For example, the moisture content ranged from 27 to 40 per cent, so that in some instances the bread contained excessive amounts of water. The fat present also showed a wide range, from 0.08 to 4.37 per cent. These differences are largely due to the methods of the bakers. In some cases only flour, yeast and salt are used, while in others milk, butter, lard and sugar, either alone or in combination, are employed. The variations in fat are also due in part to the fact that in the process of baking a part of the fat is destroyed. In some samples the amount of fat found is much lower than could have resulted from the use of any brand of flour.

A comparison of the variations in a five-cent loaf of bread is interesting in other directions also. The actual amount of dry matter per loaf in the Connecticut samples ranged from 7.9 to 12.7 ounces; the average weight of the loaf in nine cities ranged from 12.9 to 15.2 ounces. The cheapness of the three-cent and four-cent loaves indicated a real saving, as far as quantity is concerned, because the decrease in price was greater than the decrease in weight. As the price of a loaf of bread has remained stable at five cents, while the cost of the ingredients has increased, changes in the real cost of the nutrients of bread must be sought in the changes of size or composition of the loaf. According to investigations made in New Jersey in 1895, loaves costing four and five cents weighed from 12.7 to 21.8 ounces, average 16.4 ounces. In 1895 in New Jersey 58 per cent of the five-cent loaves weighed over 16 ounces, and 83 per cent over 15 ounces, while in 1912 in Connecticut only 7 per cent weighed over 16 ounces, and only 16 per cent over 15 ounces. Assuming similar conditions in these two states, the average weight of the five-cent loaf has shrunk since 1895 from 16.4 to 14 ounces, or 15 per cent. When all has been said, observes The Journal of the American Medical Association, the student of nutrition will doubtless still remark that bread is cheap at any price.

KANSAS COLLEGE TEACHES HOW TO KEEP HOUSE ON $4 PER WEEK

Home Economics Department Prepares Girls for Both Wifehood and Housewifery

MANHATTAN, Kas., April 9.—A scientific, war-to-the-death fight against old bugbear, Mr. High Cost O'Living, is being waged here with little noise, but wonderful effect. The Home Economics Department of the Kansas State Agricultural College is preparing the college girl for wifehood and housewifery. Answering the charge often heard, that the college girl graduate knows a lot about social procedure and dancing, but little regarding household duties, the officials here are teaching college girls to keep house on $4 a week. How it's done is told by a member of the faculty.

(Written for the United Press.) Every department of household economics seems to have its unique course, usually a much talked of practical one. At K.S.A.C. this is "The Dinner Work." It was inaugurated in the spring of 1904 because of the desire to make the laboratory self-supporting. At that time sixteen members of the faculty were served—today 44 are being served. Then the work resembled class work, the menu being the same throughout and the dishes prepared in the morning laboratory class. Today the work is given for the purpose of giving practical training in marketing, in preparation and in serving of meals; and it is in addition to the usual laboratory work of the course.

One of the most interesting rooms to visitors is the dining room with its adjoining small kitchens—the home of the dinner work. These are specially arranged for the work, the large dining room in the center with four kitchens on each side opening from it. Each kitchen is fitted with a sink, work table, gas range, and cupboards containing the necessary dishes and utensils for the preparation of the meal and the serving of four guests. The students take as much pride in its care as if it were really their own.

Until last spring members of the teaching force had always been the guests in the dining room, but by the request of the senior students the boys of the graduating class were then given this privilege. The department published a pamphlet on Table Etiquette and Table Service, which is in demand by those serving and by the guests. The type of meal served in the dining room varies from day to day according to this arrangement—Tuesday, formal dinner; Friday, formal luncheon; Wednesday, informal luncheon; Thursday, formal dinner; Friday, formal luncheon, and Saturday, like Wednesday, and informal luncheon. This gives opportunity for practice in several methods of serving; for the making of dishes suitable for these different meals and for the use of all left over materials. It also makes it possible for the cook to keep the total cost of food materials within her allowance.

BEAUTY AND PROFIT IN SHADE TREES

By Reginald Brinsmead of the Register Staff.

The planting of street shade trees, from the esthetic point of view, has of late years received much attention throughout the entire country; particularly is this the case in the larger cities, in many of which the value of the well grown street trees is now fully appreciated.

With many of our California cities, however, the problems to be faced in the planting of such trees differ widely from those encountered in the eastern and middle western states; for our corporate limits frequently cover a wide area solely given over to fruit growing and intensive farming, with little likelihood of such areas becoming closely built up and forming thickly populated residential districts, at least within a reasonable period of time. The further fact that the favorable climatic conditions of California will allow of a much greater variety of trees for street planting has also its effect upon the situation; and these two features—the farm lands within the city limits and the great variety of suitable trees and plants for planting—open up great opportunities not only for esthetic, but also for profitable planting.

The planting and care of street shade trees in a city of any size is a matter of very considerable expense, and the added valuation so given to abutting property has not always led to the work being carried out as extensively or systematically as conditions would seem to warrant. The average property owner, seeing no direct profit to himself, frequently fails to grasp the advantages of an attractive street frontage; and until he can be shown that street tree planting can be made, in suitable locations, a source of profit, universal plantings, other than on the main traveled highways and better residential streets, is not likely to take place; this applying with equal force to both city and county highways and by-ways.

The municipal and county authorities cannot of themselves plant and care for their entire street frontages; funds would not allow; the cultivation and good will of the property owner and taxpayer is essential. Throughout California, and more particularly in the citrus fruit growing districts, are to be found many miles of street frontage situated away from the residential districts, and yet well settled, from the fact that the land is intensively farmed under irrigation. Such streets and frontage, other than that comprised along the main "tourist" drives and highways, is readily capable of becoming the source of great revenue by the planting of income producing shade trees. The unit of such farms or orchards is ten acres, and from this generally must be deducted the land required for roads and sidewalks; and such deductions are no mean item from the whole where true intensive farming is carried out; the profitable utilization of a portion of this land is therefore of great moment.

France solved the question of the profitable street shade trees several hundred years ago, and is today reaping a rich harvest for her foresight; plantings of walnuts, chestnuts and other nut and fruit-bearing trees having been very extensively carried out by the general government and by many of the local departments.

In 1911 this country imported 33,000,000 pounds of walnuts, of which between twenty-five and twenty-six million pounds came from France; Italy, the next largest exporter, sending something less than one-sixth of the quantity we received from France. Of this immense quantity of nuts less than twenty per cent was grown on cultivated trees or orchards, such as are to be found in California; over eighty per cent of them were produced upon border trees to plots of ground, along roadways, in pastures and on hillsides and waste places. The invoiced value of such nuts at point of import into this country in 1911 amounted to over three million dollars. In Italy the bulk of the walnuts produced are grown under similar conditions. France in 1913 produced 608,000,000 pounds of chestnuts, largely grown along roadways and on border trees.

The economic significance of such plantings can be readily grasped from the above figures; and when it is borne in mind that in California such street and highway plantings can be so made as to detract in no way from the beauty of the countryside, but will add greatly thereto, the inherent possibilities which lie where such planting is systematically undertaken can readily be seen.

It is not here suggested that only main "tourist" drives and residential streets should be so planted, but the side streets and back streets, many now so totally destitute of summer shade of any description and presenting unkept, weed-laden strips along the roadside where these trees could so readily be set out—streets and roads which the municipal or county authorities have not the funds to care for and which the abutting property owner cannot be induced to plant to shade trees which would probably have an injurious effect upon the crops he grows on the adjacent land. But give a planting which can be made a source of revenue, and one largely dependent upon the degree of care it receives, and the unkept street frontage can be made, in the majority of instances, to retreat into the limbo of the past, and the co-operation of the abutting property owner is assured.

The walnut, the chestnut, the almond will all grow well with comparatively little care in locations suited to them; and the list of other nuts and crop-bearing fruit trees is legion. Intersect such plantings with ornamental shrubs and plants, with palms and evergreens, and combinations of rare beauty will result.

Plant the main arteries of travel, the highways and the residential streets with the live-oak, the pepper palm and evergreens and California can be made to blossom like a garden of the Gods. Set out profitable nut and other suitable fruit trees along the byways—intersecting with flowering shrubs, palms and plants—and the state will possess an economic factor in its development without parallel, and one which will in no wise detract from the beauty of the countryside, but greatly add thereto.

The past has perhaps largely failed to appreciate the meaning of such plantings, their value to the community at large; for not only can they—planned on broad lines and not undertaken "hit and miss"—be made to beautify our streets, to add the welcome and needed summer shade, but their need of intelligent care in order to produce the greatest profit will lead to orderly, well-kept country roadsides.

Edited by Miss
Florence StoneANNUAL MEETING
HELD BY CHURCHAbout 250 Persons Attended Gathering Tuesday Night
of This Week

At the annual report meeting of the Presbyterian church and congregation Tuesday night a bountiful supper was served to about 250 people. The members of the Ladies' Aid Society were hostesses.

The annual meeting is always an occasion when the spirit of sociability prevails and representatives from all the families in the church are in attendance. On Tuesday the young girls in the church and Sunday school assisted in the decorations, which were of smilax, red roses and ferns. Careful attention to details in the arrangement of a profusion of red roses made the whole effect beautiful.

The tables were spread with many good things and they were decorated with brown wicker baskets of maiden hair ferns and daisies.

After all had been bountifully served the company were seated in the main auditorium and joined in singing. A. E. Bennett was chosen moderator and the minutes of the previous meeting were called for, which were read by J. A. Dort, clerk of the session.

The following reports were read, showing the church activities to be in excellent condition.

Report for the session was read by E. J. Cranston; for the Missionary Society, Mrs. J. W. McCullough; the Ladies' Aid Society, Mrs. W. L. Leiby; the Sunday school, Miss Dorothy Utt. The report of the superintendent of the Primary class showed sixty-five little ones in that class every Sunday. The report of the Berean Bible class was read by Mrs. Frank Logan, and for the Christian Endeavor work by Miss Margaret Tingley.

The report of the church treasurer, E. J. Cranston, showed a very satisfactory condition of the church finances. Mr. Cranston was re-elected trustee, and he was also unanimously re-elected church treasurer. Messrs. C. C. White, A. E. Bennett, C. P. Marshall and J. A. Dort were also elected trustees, and J. A. Dort clerk of the session. Informal discussions of the different departments of work were invited by the moderator, and some interesting suggestions were made. The most pressing need was shown to be that of a new room for the primary class.

All the reports of church work were very satisfactory and it was stated that the Ladies' Aid Society had doubled its reputation for good work. A rising vote of thanks was given the members of that society for their hospitality on this occasion.

After a discussion of plans for the promotion of sociability in the church the meeting adjourned.

EDITORIAL

CALIFORNIA FRUIT TO GO THROUGH THE CANAL

The fruit growers of the Tustin district will be interested in the prediction made by Chas. E. Virden of the California Fruit Distributors' Association that one-third of the fruit produced in California will be carried through the Panama Canal.

At a meeting of the Sacramento Union a few weeks ago Mr. Virden made the statement that three steamship lines have written him concerning the possibilities of fruit carrying through the Panama Canal and the kind of refrigeration necessary to handle fruit which crosses the tropics, showing that they are looking for business in this direction.

Oranges and lemons and even pears and apples are not prohibited on account of the length of time, which at the present contemplated schedule for steamers through the canal to New York is about one-third longer than by rail. The length of time will be prohibitive in regard to peaches, apricots and other perishable fruits unless some better method of refrigeration is discovered.

Mr. Virden says: "With the constantly increasing amount of citrus fruits in this section and the possibilities of better refrigeration, the inquiry of the steamship companies is of large moment."

ELWING AND TEDFORD ARE ARCHITECTS FOR
THE NEW SCHOOL

New Building to Be Modern and Convenient in Every Particular

At a meeting of the Tustin school trustees with the consulting committee last Saturday night it was decided to adopt plans for the new schoolhouse which were presented by Elwing & Tedford of Santa Ana.

The general type of these plans is that of an H shaped, one-story and basement building, presenting the advantages of an easy entrance and exit, and an abundance of light.

The main entrance will face D street and from this you enter the teachers' and principal's rooms, and directly back of these will be the auditorium.

On each side are four class rooms with two class rooms back of the auditorium which may or may not be opened into the auditorium. There will be a balcony over the above two rooms and a library and rest room over the teachers' and principal's room. In the basement are included a sloyd room, a domestic science room, a lunch room and bicycle room. A heating and ventilating system will change the air in the rooms at frequent intervals.

The above is the general idea of the building, but of course the plans and specifications are not yet ready for the builder. When they are completed, bids will be called for and the work will be pushed along as rapidly as possible.

The articles in the April number of "The World's Work" were the subject of study.

There were eight members present. The hostess served delicious refreshments.

Shoup-Culley

The marriage of Miss Evangeline Culley to Chauncey Shoup was consummated on Tuesday afternoon, April 8. They went to Los Angeles and were married by Rev. McKibben, an old friend of the family.

They left immediately for a trip to Redlands and Riverside. They will return to Tustin for the present, but will eventually go to Mulvane, Kas., to live, which was Mr. Shoup's home before coming to California.

W. C. T. U. Meeting

The meeting of the Tustin W.C.T.U. was held Thursday afternoon with Mrs. C. A. Miller.

The meeting opened with a song service, followed by the roll call and reading of minutes.

A purchase of song books was decided upon and a committee was appointed as judges of the essays which have been written by the school pupils. The ladies who compose the committee are Mrs. Rawlings, Mrs. Utt and Mrs. Miller.

Mrs. Ed. Smith and Mrs. Harry Lewis were appointed as delegates to the county convention to be held in Santa Ana on April 21 and 22.

A collection of over $4 was taken for Ransom Home and the treasurer was instructed to make it $5, and send it to the home.

Answers to questions which were given at the last meeting on the subject of "government," were then called for by the president. Not all the members were present who had the questions, but those given led to a very interesting and instructive discussion.

The subject for discussion at this meeting was "Anti-Narcotics," and was led by Mrs. C. E. Utt. Mrs. Utt gave an interesting talk and brought out the importance of instructing the young people about the effect of narcotics, and read a poem by Ella Wheeler Wilcox bearing upon the subject.

The ladies particularly enjoyed the beautiful flowers at Mrs. Miller's home. The rooms were decorated

SALTS IF KIDNEYS
OR BLADDER BOTHER

Harmless to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating
Acids

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

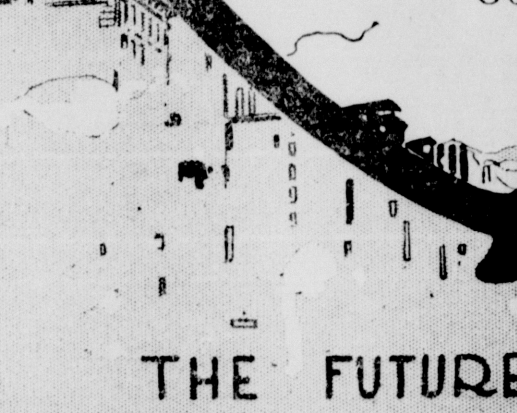

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble. Advertisment.

Birthday Party

A little girls' party was given Monday afternoon by Ida Thorman, upon the occasion of her seventh birthday. She entertained eighteen little guests, who first gathered in the house while a lovely table was spread out on the lawn, decked with smilax and roses. Each pretty little place-card had a tiny chicken on it. They had their pictures taken at the table.

Of course there was a lovely birthday cake and other delicious cakes and good things and ice cream. In all the games that were played there was a lively contest. Those who gained the highest number of points recorded on the score cards received prizes. Three little girls got prizes. They were Helen and Marian Stanley and Elsie Wilcox. The little hostess received a good many remembrances from her friends, the most of them being Easter ideas.

Young Girls' Club

The young ladies' new embroidery club held a meeting Wednesday afternoon with Miss Mabel Logan. There was not a very full meeting on account of the members being away, but the afternoon was very much enjoyed. The hostess served dainty refreshments and some interesting pieces of embroidery were started.

Shower for Miss Matthews

A shower was given by Mrs. Fenlon Matthews Thursday afternoon in honor of Miss Alice Matthews, who is to be a May bride. It has always been a hard matter to surprise Miss Alice, but this time the surprise was complete. Although the house was beautifully decorated with cream and pink roses, all preparations were kept from her until the right moment. After the greetings, her friends were given paper and pencils upon which to give her advice and then she was required to read them. Some of them were highly amusing as well as wise. The gifts received were notable for the beautiful hand work upon them. She said for the reason, she supposed, that she never loved to wash dishes, she received a lovely dish pan.

Refreshments of fruit salad, punch and cake were served. Those present were Mesdames L. P. Kiser, J. H. Stearns, Harry Matthews, Joan Kiser, Andrew Cook, Frank Stearns, Mrs. Rumsey and Misses Jessie Rumsey, Jessie and Carrie Matthews, Eva and Gladys Stearns, the hostess and Miss Alice Matthews.

Entertained at Dinner
Mrs. Thos. Rawlings entertained at dinner on Wednesday the following friends: Mrs. W. L. Shatto and her guests, Mrs. Watson and Mrs. Davis.

The day was delightfully spent, as all the members of the family were at the home except the son, Walter Rawlings, who is studying at Berkeley. A letter was read from him and the friends enjoyed looking at a new picture just received of himself.

The Tustin "Ys"

A meeting of the Tustin "Ys" will be held with Miss Edith Higgins tonight.

MOTHER! IS CHILD'S STOMACH SOUR' SICK?

If Cross, Feverish, Constipated,
Give "California Syrup
of Figs."

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomachache, indigestion, diarrhoea, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeiters sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup. Advertisment.
